

This web site and the materials appearing in it are intended to provide you with general information about Georgia Legal Services Program, its services and its locations. The site and the materials are not intended to advertise our services, to solicit clients or to provide legal advice. You should not rely on the posted materials as advice about specific legal problems. Such advice can be rendered only by competent counsel familiar with the particular facts and circumstances of your legal problem.

Posting and viewing of the materials on our web site is not intended to constitute the rendering of legal advice to you or to create an attorney-client relationship with you, the viewer. The purpose of this website is to help you find information and to help you contact us so that you may apply to become a client of Georgia Legal Services Program.

If you are not presently a client of Georgia Legal Services Program, please do not e-mail us any information about your legal problems until you have made direct contact with one of attorneys or paralegals— we cannot guarantee that information you send over the Internet will remain secure, so any such communications may not be secure, will not be privileged and may be disclosed to others. Once we have determined that we have no conflict in advising you, we would be pleased to discuss your situation in more depth.